WITHDRAWAL RECORD.

The withdrawal book is the necessary complement to the accession book which is a record of all books added to the library, and contains, in its remarks column, a note of each book withdrawn. The accession book, does not, however, give the total number of books withdrawn at any time.

Each volume withdrawn from a library for any reason must have an entry on a separate line in the withdrawal book, which will thus furnish a record of all books lost, infected, worn out, sold or injured so that they are past library use. Note of withdrawal should be made in the remarks column of the accession book opposite the entry for the withdrawn volume, on the shelf list and on the catalog. The cards for such volumes should be removed from the catalog, if there are no duplicate copies in the library, or if the book is not part of a set cataloged on one card. If a copy of the book still remains on the shelves, write the word "withdrawn" opposite the accession number on the back of the author card in the catalog.

The accession register shows how many books the library has owned; the withdrawal record, how many have been taken away; both of these books are necessary in finding how many books are actually owned by the library at any time.

The withdrawal book is second only to the accession book in the business records of the library. The items obtained from it for the monthly or annual report are: total number of books withdrawn to date, number of books withdrawn since last report, the number worn out, lost, sold and condemned for other reasons, amount paid for lost or injured books and for books sold, the number of books replaced and a list of the same.

Enter one volume to a line, filling all spaces provided. The second space for accession number is for the number of the replaced copy. The withdrawal number should be entered in the remarks column of the accession book, on the shelf list and in the book where it is stamped or written "withdrawn" with the date of withdrawal.

A volume should not be entered in this record until its loss is certain. Books missing at the time of inventory should be carefully looked up, and a record made in the withdrawal book only after some time has passed without finding any clue to the missing volume.

The book cards, or, when these are missing with the book, the catalog cards may be kept as an alphabetical index to the withdrawal book.

A book found after entry in the withdrawal book should be accessioned as a new book, receiving a new accession number and having explanatory note made.

The replace copy of the book withdrawn should be accessioned as a new book, with a note of the accession number of the copy which it replaces Record of the replace copy should be made in the remarks column, opposite the accession entry of the withdrawn book. Thus the new copy will bear the note "replacing 516," and at number 516, we will find "replaced by 689." The shelf and catalog cards for the former copy may be used if the two editions are alike.

Following are the steps in the process of withdrawing a book from the library, or making record of a lost book:

1. Entry in the withdrawal book.

2. Withdrawal note, number and date in remarks column of the accession book.

3. Withdrawal note and number written on shelf list. Where a card shelf list is used, and there is but one copy or volume of the book, the card may be removed from the list and kept in a separate file.

4. Cards removed from the catalog, or note made on the back of catalog card if there are two or more copies or volumes. If the book is not to be replaced note of withdrawal should be made on the library copy of the printed finding list.

5. The book card, or catalog card, filed as an alphabetical index to the withdrawal book.

6. Purchase slip made for replace copy, if the book is needed in the library.
